

I have not even tuned into a local radio station in well over a year. I pay a subscription to XM so that I don't have to listen to screaming auto sales and furniture sales commercials. I would pay even more than the $25 per month for 3 separate XM subscriptions. Local radio stations do not provide an adequate service for traffic and weather or music, for that matter. In fact, most local radio stations provide little or no public service at all. Unless perpetual remotes from car lots and mattress dealers is considered a public service. XM is the greatest thing to ever happen to radio or music. I can find music that I want to hear that is never played by any local station. I urge the FCC to reject petition 04-160 from the National Association of Broadcasters as an attempt to force their own substandard practices on the American listening public!
